Allegations of scientific misconduct are challenging. Not all such allegations warrant investigation, but some require extensive evaluation. JAMA reviews its approach to allegations of scientific misconduct on a regular basis to ensure that the process is timely, objective, and fair to authors and their institutions, and results in evidence that will directly address the allegations of misconduct.

An academic journal's prestige is established over time, and can reflect many factors, some but not all of which are expressible quantitatively. In each academic discipline, there are dominant journals that receive the largest number of submissions, and therefore can be selective in choosing their content. Yet, not only the largest journals are of excellent quality.
